GALLIPOLIS, NOV. 20, 1873.

The Spanish-Cuban Trouble. We stated last week that a Spanish gunboat had captured an American vessel six miles off the shores of Jamaica, and there would probably be some trouble in diplomatic circles concerning its capture, and the shooting of four of the prisoners, Gen. Ryon, Je sus del Sol, Bembetta and Don Pedro Cespedee. Further information makes the affair much more serious than at first supposed, and the opinion is pre valent that something more than di plomacy may be necessary in order to atone for the crimes committed. There are questions touching the capture of the vessel, the Virginius, which must be settled ere a conclusion is arrived at. First, whether the Virginius is an American vessel. Of this there are some doubts, one authority stating that she was sold over a year ago to some Cubans, who converted her into a privateer. Another states that she was sailing with an American register and under an American flag. Second, whether she was violating the neutrality laws at the time of her seizure. Third, whether she was sailing in neutral waters. Ever since the departure of the Virginius from an American port she has been at work serving the Cuban insurgents, by landing men and authorities had no claim to make abolish alavery, and the standing to convince the most obdurate doubtproceedings. The official organ at Havana on the contrary says that the Senator Morton on Spanish Brupirate ship, armed by of Cuba in the ports of the National States, landed arms and remarked that the recent executions
